

QUNIQUE AND P36 FORM Strategic Partnership

December 16th 2020- QUNIQUE and p36 are announcing their strategic partnership. This partnership comes with a need for more transparency and better traceability in the life sciences industries ensuring that manufacturers achieve compliance to European and global requirements on Unique Device Identification (UDI).

A Partnership based on a mutual focus on providing solutions

The medical device and in vitro diagnostic industries are experiencing global changes with the aim of achieving more transparency and better traceability ensuring greater safety through more efficient market surveillance activities. These developments have troubled the way the various stakeholders are dealing with their strategical regulatory approaches and require that manufacturers apply differed methodologies when showing compliance globally. Due to the necessity of spreading good practice and applying advanced technologies towards leaner implementation of the legal requirements, QUNIQUE and p36 have decided to create this partnership to provide their clients with a better strategy to fulfill the requirements by offering them the full competence needed to understand and implement the requirements.

With this collaboration, QUNIQUE and p36 aim to deliver the full-service packages needed to fulfill the UDI legal obligations both in Europe and the rest of the world. Part of this collaboration, both organizations are planning to deliver combined trainings and educational activities to their clients to better resolve the various challenges faced with regulatory compliance.
